

In sprint 1, we were able to accomplish a total of 26 story points. In sprint 2, however, our story points has grown to 30. Our velocity has increased because in sprint 1, we were building just the simple base of the project—stuff that just makes it work (i.e., login, etc.). However, in sprint 2, we started to build on top of it, adding more complex features (the features that would want a user to use our product), which is why we see an increase in story points.